Posted On: 03 NOV 2026 5:27PM by PIB Agartala

Union Minister of State for Agriculture and Farmers' Welfare, Ram Nath Thakur today arrived at the Agartala airport on an official visit. The purpose of his trip is to review the implementation and progress of central government schemes in the state.

Addressing media persons upon his arrival, the Union Minister explained that as part of central outreach initiatives under department schemes like 'Khet Bachao Abhiyan', representatives and leaders visit states and specific districts across the country to inspect how central welfare schemes are functioning on the ground, evaluate financial expenditures, and overall development and progress.

Highlighting that the central government mandates checking fund utilization and scheme performance directly, he noted that his visit aims to ensure these welfare programs are effectively delivering development and benefits to the region.

Tomorrow, The Union Minister will preside in a review meeting under Poorvottar Sampark Setu programme with Gomati District Administrative Department , He will also take part in khet Bachao Abhiyan in farms field of Gomati District District.
